Famous Paintings Showing at Youth Center

The Pictures:

HERE ARE SIX OF THE 200 famous paintings being displayed this week at the Youth Center by the Hope Junior Auxiliary for the benefit of the steel fund or the local public schools.

ADMISSION IS 35 CENTS and the entire proceeds will be used to buy works of art for the Hope schools. Viewing hours at the Youth Center are: 9 to 12 mornings, and 1 to 5 evenings. Tonight (Tuesday) only, the gallery will be open from 7 to 9 o'clock.

SELECTION OF THE prints for publication was made by Mrs. George W. Peck, of the Auxiliary, with The Editor advising as to the best newspaper reproduction. The photographs were made with a Speed Graphic camera using the large-size 4x5 Polaroid print paper.

READING FROM TOP TO bottom, here are the pictures: TOP LEFT — LAVINIA, BY Titian, original print, 19x15 inches. The artist used his daughter as the model. This will be reproduced as a living picture by Mary Frances Cook of Paisley elementary school at the Paisley PTA meeting at 3 o'clock this Wednesday afternoon in the school building. All the school PTAs are holding similar meetings.

THIRD FROM TOP — FIRE Engine, by Opper, 23x31.

FOURTH FROM TOP — Meet at the Lodge, by Bennett, 23x30. White horse at right is ever-fighting from a window.

BOTTOM — RECOLLECTION of Italy, by Chirico, 13x27, a bold study in the Modern school of art.

N. Arkansas Man Named to O&G Board

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus today took note of recent natural gas development in northwest Arkansas by appointing a resident of the area to the Arkansas Oil & Gas Commission. Faubus named R. K. Rogers of Fort Smith to the commission to succeed J. C. Landes of Lewisville.

The governor said he was "taking cognizance" of gas field exploitation between Fort Smith and Russellville. In the east, most of the commission members have come from south Arkansas where most oil and gas activity is concentrated.

Faubus said Landes had "done a fine job" and there was no criticism of his work on the commission.

"But I wanted to get someone on there from the section of the state where a lot of gas activity is developing," the governor added.

He reappointed Basil Hong of Texarkana to the commission.

In another development, Faubus announced the resignation of Berne Brown of Little Rock as director of vital statistics for the state Health Department. Brown said he wanted to return to his former profession of journalism.

Faubus said he would go to Hot Springs to attend a convention of the Arkansas Bus and Truck Assn. but did not plan to speak.

"Sen. John L. McClellan is going to give the speech tonight," he told newsmen.

B&PW Planning a Birthday Dinner

The Hope Business and Professional Women's Club has planned a birthday dinner for the club this Friday, Nov. 13, at 7 p.m. at the Arkla Village Inn.

Guest speaker will be Mrs. Mabel Williams, president of the club.

Six clubs will be represented at the dinner.

It is increasing clamor for this birthday dinner to be held this year.

Labor Leader's Charge Titled 'Demagoguery'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House today described as demagoguery the charge by labor leader Emil Mazey that President Eisenhower's actions in the steel strike were a political payoff to the steel companies.

Press secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen: "Such demagoguery leveled against President Eisenhower is, of course, not really worthy of comment. I am sure that the American people realize that the President acted only when it was clear that the welfare of the United States dictated positive action under the law. Such action was upheld by the courts of our land."

"Sure," Hagerty replied when asked whether his remarks applied to several other labor leaders who had been critical of Eisenhower's handling of the steel strike.

Mazey, secretary-treasurer of the United Auto Workers, made his accusations against Eisenhower in a speech Monday to the convention of the AFL-CIO Industrial Union Department.

Mazey asserted that Eisenhower had used the Taft-Hartley law to end the steel strike as a payoff to corporations which backed Eisenhower in the 1956 presidential campaign.

Both George Meany, AFL-CIO president, and Walter Reuther, Auto Union president, charged in other speeches that the injunction procedure used to end the steel strike was a one-sided solution against unions.

They said it bore out labor's charges that the Taft-Hartley Act is a slave labor statute that can be used to make men work against their will.

The union group itself, claiming to represent seven million labor union members, adopted a resolution criticizing the government's action as an attempt at strike-breaking.

"This injunction was imposed deliberately after the strike began to pinch the industry in its most sensitive nerve center—its pocketbook," the union resolution said.

The Supreme Court upheld Saturday the Taft-Hartley law injunction which the administration had obtained more than two weeks earlier on its contention the nation's health and safety were threatened.

Arthur J. Goldberg, Steelworkers Union general counsel, told the delegates organized labor must be ready with positive recommendations for changing the national emergency strike provisions when Congress reconvenes in January.

Goldberg suggested a wide range of alternative steps open to the President so that neither labor nor management involved in a big strike would know what governmental action to expect. That would put both sides under pressure to reach a voluntary settlement before an emergency develops, he said.

Under the Taft-Hartley law now, Goldberg said, management knows the government ultimately will be compelled to seek an 80-day injunction.

If it is government policy to protect public interest by maintaining essential production in such situations, he said, the sacrifice should be borne equally by both sides, not by labor alone.

Officers accompanied Smith back to the lake to investigate. Coroner W. M. Jones pronounced the body of Mrs. Willis as accidentally drowned.

Smith and Mrs. Willis were recently married. He said they came to the lake frequently.

Police said Timms is stationed with the Navy at Memphis.

The fines and sentences were imposed on charges of assault, resisting arrest, driving under the influence of alcohol or narcotics and leaving the scene of an accident.

The body was sent to Bastrop.

Langer's opposition.

Typical of Langer's often lonely political stands was one of his last Senate votes. He and Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) were the only senators to vote against the labor reform bill at the last session.

Another key party vote was on the confirmation of Lewis L. Strauss as secretary of commerce earlier in the year. Two Republicans voted against Strauss—Langer and Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine. Strauss's confirmation was defeated 48-40.

Langer died in his sleep of heart failure Sunday at his home. He had been ailing since his wife, Lydia, since Republican Gov. John Davis of North Dakota is sure to appoint a Republican to serve the rest of Langer's term, the Senate lineup of 65 Democrats and 35 Republicans will remain unchanged.

DOROTHY DIX

A Fiance Who Ridicules Now Won't Be Considerate Husband

Dear Dorothy Dix:

Next June I plan to marry a man I have known for four years. We get along well by ourselves, but in company he is ready to embarrass me in many ways, such as making fun of my rather protruding teeth. If I mention it to him he always says, "Well, you know I don't mean it." How am I to know whether he means it or not? Is he just plain ignorant or will he get over it some day?

— Prunella,

Dear Prunella: The qualities of consideration and thoughtfulness are among the most important factors in matrimony; they are also a gauge of good-husband material. No man lacking these virtues will ever be successful as a husband; he fails the first test to prove that he would make a woman happy. Such seemingly small matters as your fiance's remarks about a physical imperfection are actually major failings that should make you stop short now and thoroughly analyze the man's character. Be absolutely sure on one point: Any weakness in his attitude toward you will be magnified a hundred fold after marriage. These things never diminish they multiply and flourish.

People of weak character, insecure in every position of life, uncertain of their own ability to create happiness about them, are prone to this type of so-called humor. The only way they can get into the limelight is by casting reflections on their companions — whether friends or family. It is pathetic to watch a friend strive in this ignoble fashion for attention.

— Prunella,

Dear Dorothy Dix:

We automatically overlook faults in the believed, be they physical or temperamental flaws. In fact, every man and woman has plenty of imperfections to overlook in a mate.

Your possibilities for happiness with such an individual are extremely remote, and marriage with him is a risky affair.

Dear Dorothy Dix:

There are two young men in my life; one is a Yank in Germany, and I know he loves me, but I'm not so sure of my feelings for him. The other is home, and I know I love him, but, though he says he loves me, he continues going out with other girls. I'm 18. Should I continue to try winning the boy at home or stick to my soldier sweetheart? — Bewildered.

Dear Bewildered: Any girl is a fool for trying to win a man who doesn't care a rap for her. Words are easy, actions count, and when a young man goes out with other girls you may be sure he has no love for you. However, don't turn to your soldier lad just because he likes you. Unless there's a possibility of your reciprocating his love, don't mislead him with false hopes. Perhaps your solution lies with a new friend!

Dear Dorothy Dix:

We are a club of nine girls, including one we would like to drop out. She bores us with complaints of her mother-in-law and all her other in-laws; we have never heard her say anything good about anyone. She is very conceited, tries to dress better than anyone else and brag about every little ability she has, which isn't much. How can we get her to drop out?

— Secretary

Dear Secretary: When she complains about her relatives, tell her point blank that the rest of you are not interested in them. Or at an opportune moment, you could introduce a resolution stating that since there is so much trouble in the world, the confines of the club are to close to complaints and any member airing grievances must pay a fine. She may resign out of consideration for her pocketbook. Let's hope so!

Faubus Says State Demos Should Pay

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus said today Arkansas Democrats should pay their way in national party circles so "we can more fully speak our piece."

Faubus' remarks were in reference to National Chairman Paul Butler's complaint that many states were delinquent in their party quotas and those who failed to pay up might be penalized in seating arrangements at the national convention.

"As long as we are a full fledged partner we can more fully speak our piece and represent our own interest in the party," Faubus said at a news conference.

"The party leaders in Arkansas made the decision to go ahead and raise Arkansas' quota and I am sure it will be done."

Faubus added that, as a result, Arkansas should be treated pretty well at the convention because "we are above average in our contributions."

Mrs. Jack Carnes of Camden, national committeewoman, said she had applied to the national committee for the "best possible" hotel accommodations for the state delegation at the convention opening in Los Angeles July 11. She said the national committee was expected to act on the accommodations at its January meeting in Washington.

Rate Cut to Cripple Bell, Witness Says

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A witness for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. testified at a rate reduction hearing today that any major change in the firm's capital structure would cripple its financial standing.

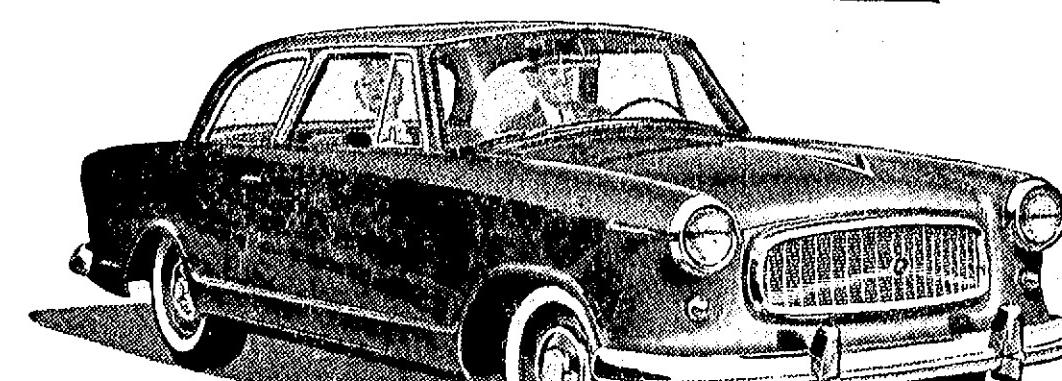

Carl A. Conrad, an official of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., was the first witness in Bell's rebuttal testimony before the Arkansas Public Service Commission.

The PSC has ordered Bell to show cause why its Arkansas rates should not be lowered by three million dollars a year. Bell protested and countered with a request for a $100,000 annual raise in fringe rates.

Conrad, assistant treasurer of AT&T, sought to refute testimony given in an earlier phase of the lengthy hearing. Arnold Hirsch of Washington, D. C., a rate consultant for the PSC, had testified Bell was top heavy in common stock and this resulted in a peaking of telephone subscribers.

Hirsch said the AT&T, parent president; Sam Mizrahi, Texarkana, secretary; Winfield Swafford, Texarkana, treasurer, and R. E. Johnson, Jonesboro, tiler.

Syracuse Takes First Spot and Porkers Are 20

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Syracuse has taken over the No. 1 spot among the nation's football powers with a slender lead over Texas in the weekly Associated Press poll of sports writers and sportscasters.

Both Louisiana State and Northwestern, running one-two a week ago, were dumped from the ranks to the unbeatens last Saturday. LSU, the leader for 14 straight weeks, fell before a sturdy Tennessee team. Northwestern was beaten by Wisconsin in a battle for the Big Ten lead.

The race between Syracuse and Texas, both unbeaten, was decided by only 12 points, although Syracuse received 11 first place votes and Texas 85 of the 220 cast.

Texas, a 13-2 winner over Baylor, picked up enough second, third and fourth ballots to finish a tight second.

Syracuse handed Penn State its first defeat 20-18. The victory virtually clinched the Eastern title and a bowl bid for the Orange. Despite its defeat, LSU drew solid support and dropped only to third place. Northwestern fell from second to sixth. The outpouring of 220 votes was the heaviest of the season and the most in several seasons.

The only newcomer among the top ten was Tennessee which displaced Clemson despite Clemson's 6-0 victory over Duke.

"Good claim service" seems to be desired by nearly anyone who buys insurance. As a result, all the major insurance companies boast of their "prompt settlement" of claims.

But "good" claim service involves more than mere speed. It also must be satisfactory to all concerned.

This requires that the insurance must be painstakingly written BEFORE the loss occurs.

Adequate coverage at time of loss will depend upon how carefully hazards were analyzed, how wisely coverages were chosen, how accurately policies were written and how well the insurance program has kept pace with changes.

A thorough analysis of your insurance needs BEFORE a loss happens pave the way to a friendly and fast claim settlement. That's why we stress this PERSONALIZED SERVICE for our customers.

Then, too, a satisfactory settlement depends on the proper attitude on the part of the insurance company itself. As INDEPENDENT agents we can and DO expect fair companies — ones whose attitude is this: "Before denying a claim, see if there is any way under the contract that it CAN be paid."

Isn't that the kind of claims service you want?

Another Bad Weekend for SW Loop

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Darrell Royal of Texas hopes his team has more enthusiasm for this week's crucial game with Texas Christian than it did for Baylor. He indicated he figured Texas' great winning streak would end if it didn't.

Texas Christian obviously will have plenty of enthusiasm. The boys romped through one of their best workouts of the season yesterday as they started preparing for the invasion of Austin. Coach Abe Martin was pleased with the spirit shown by his Horned Frogs.

Royal, however, lamented over the lack of aggressiveness shown by his team against Baylor, whom they beat by only one point. "We had busted assignments on plays that have been standard for three years," he commented. "We were apparently complacent."

Anyway, both teams are expected to be in top physical condition when they play the game that may decide the Southwest Conference championship or at least the Cotton Bowl spot.

Or almost as much note is the clash of Southern Methodist and Arkansas at Dallas. Victory by SMU could give Texas the championship if the Longhorns also win. An Arkansas victory would knock SMU out of the race and keep Arkansas in it.

The main concern was whether Jim Mooty, Arkansas' great halfback, would be able to play. He was injured in the Rice game last week. Southern Methodist figured to be in good physical condition all the way around.

Texas A&M and Rice meet in the other conference game on the schedule. It means nothing in the title race but Rice wants to win one and the Aggies would like to snap out of a 4-game losing streak.

The Aggies were in good shape but were warned by Assistant Coach Doug Bradley, in his scouting report, that Rice had great buckfield speed and a big line.

Rice, however, had some troublesome injuries. These included halfback Max Webb, who has a shoulder separation, and center Jerry Graves, who hurt his knee in the game with Arkansas last week.

Texas Tech and Baylor have games with outside foes. Baylor goes to Los Angeles to meet undefeated, untied Southern California and Coach John Bridgers' Bears that Southern Cal had "terrific personnel and is every bit as large as Texas Christian — and faster."

Texas Tech will meet University of Houston and scout Joe Moss said that outfit had powerful running and accurate passing.

Porkers to Be Badly Crippled for Mustangs

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas' limping Razorbacks suffered another blow in the line week when they lost tackle Jim Hollander because of a sprained ankle. Hollander won't be able to start Saturday when the Hogs go after Southern Methodists Ponies at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas.

Replacing him will be Dean Garrett, a talented sophomore who has played both guard and tackle this year.

First unit end Steve Butler, who has been absent from the last two games because of a foot injury, probably will play Saturday. End Les Letsinger reinjured a hip in the Rice game and may not start.

Letsinger, the team's top defensive end, kayoed SMU's Den Meredith last year with a bone-crushing tackle late in the second quarter. Meredith was cut much of the rest of the game, the Ponies passing failed, and Arkansas won 11-6 on an upset.

SMU is favored again this year by about a touchdown. The Hogs, who have won six of eight games, are plenty worried about Meredith and his passing.

Porker (T) Team quarterback Billy Moore began throwing from a spread formation in practice yesterday to get the varsity used to looking at Meredith's tactics. Most of SMU's offensive work now is done from the spread although earlier in the year the Ponies alternated between the spread and the T.

The knee of halfback Jim Mooty, which was injured in the early stages of the 14-10 victory over Rice, had swollen yesterday and trainer Bill Ferrell said he may not be able to start against SMU but probably will see action.

Senior quarterback Jim Monroe still has a bad shoulder and sophomore quarterback George McKinney is directing the first unit. There was no word as to whether Monroe will start Saturday.

If he does not, McKinney, Kyser, Lance Alworth and fullback Joe Paul Alberta would make up the starting backfield. The opening line would include Billy Truett and Jim Gaston at ends (providing Butler does not start), Marvin Epp and Garrett at tackles. Billy Laplow and Gerald Gardner at guards. Wayne Harris or Barry Switzer at center.

Members of Bethel Church who attended were Mrs. L. M. Davis, Mrs. E. M. Nelson, Mrs. Reade, Mrs. E. L. Green, Mrs. E. L. Hicks, Messers J. J. Taylor, Henry Nelson and R. J. Hicks.

No Record as Yet on Number of Deer Kills

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Reports of kills on the first day of Arkansas' split deer season were being collected today but no official tally could be made immediately.

The initial half of the season opened yesterday and runs through Saturday.

The Arkansas Game and Fish Commission at Little Rock said a record number of hunters might take to the woods during the 1959 season, because deer hunting is allowed in all 75 of the state's counties this time.

A game warden at Berryville reported 32 kills yesterday. The largest was a 327 pound, 11-point buck. It was the first open season for Carroll County.

Several score deer and one wolf were reported killed in Greene County. Curtis Cruse of Paragould shot the wolf while stalking deer near the Craighead County line.

Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett was brought down a five-point, 175-pounder with one shot about 10 miles south of Hazen in Prairie County.

Jim Moffett, assistant Faulkner County farm agent, killed a six-pointer near Scotland in Van Buren County.

About 2,000 hunters were out in Ashley County yesterday. The county has led the state in the number of deer kills annually.

The Game and Fish Commission said there were 7,038 legal kills in the first half of the 1958 season. The second half, in December, produced 2,795 kills last year.

This total of 9,825 was an Arkansas record.

CHAPTER XX

"Maria." The old woman turned to the teen-age Brazilian girl, who was breaking a flower from a vine. "Go lie in the market for me, Maria. Get four capivara steaks."

The girl stuck the purple flower in her black hair.

"My husband said that this man was not a true de Faria," the old woman continued. "My husband fed the horses in the de Faria stables before the family moved to Rio, and he said there was no son by the name of Gamo."

"Guaro, mother," came a voice from the corner of the house.

"Go on, Maria, go on. And hold the steaks to your nose to be sure they're fresh. And he's still telling strangers the same things."

"Excuse me," Sara interrupted, edging onto the walk, "but I must go." Guaro's anxiety made good gossip, but she must talk to Ubo.

As she knocked at the house, she heard the old man coughing. She opened the unlocked screen and followed the sound of the coughing down a hall to a rear room. Through an open door, she saw him on a cot.

"May I come in, grandpa?"

"Uh uh. Ah, entre, Senhorita."

He fumbled with the side of the cot trying to get his legs over it. "Thank you, grandpa, don't get up." She turned a chair so it faced him.

"I'm so weak today, senhorita, that I did not go outside."

"You haven't always been so weak, have you, grandpa?" she prodded.

"Weak? Ah, senhorita, in the springtime of my life, I could bring in more latex from the rubber tree than any other man in the Fontes estate. And my route was as wild and rough as the wildest and the roughest."

"Fontes? The same family who own the warehouse where you worked?"

"Sun, senhorita. The son is master of the warehouse, the father is master of the estate."

"So you left the rubber trees and came to Belém?"

"Left? I had to leave. The young people don't have feelings about the English stealing the rubber seeds. But back when the masters of the great estates found themselves with tons of rubber stacked up and nobody to buy it! Uh, uh, when they found out about the Senhor Wickham, they hated everybody who had helped the senhor. Does the sen-horita want to know how strong I was when I was a child?" "How strong, grandpa?"

"I was a little boy — he held out a hand — 'not more than seven or eight. But I could paddle a canoe like the senhorita can walk on her feet. And no light load like her to carry, but all the wicker baskets full of rubber seeds that the canoe would hold.'

He screwed up his wrinkled toothless mouth. "That's why I had to leave the estate, senhorita. It is the great sadness of my life."

"Why did you have to leave, grandpa?" The conversation was doing her no good, but the old man enjoyed talking about it so.

"Uh uh. I paddled the canoe for the Senhor Wickham when he took away the rubber seeds. Paddled the canoe and hauled the laskets up onto that beautiful ship that took them away. There were blue lights on that ship, senhorita."

"A spasm of coughing stopped him, but only for a moment.

"I didn't know that I was hurting my country. The grown men didn't live to see it happen, but we who were young did."

It was plain that Ubo enjoyed the great sadness of his life.

"And tell me about the fire that burned you, grandpa. How did it happen?" Sara asked.

"Sim, sim, senhorita. I go to work and I smell the burning. I know that there is gasoline there..." His excitement was halted with another fit of coughing.

"The Senhor Fontes always told me that if there is fire, get the gasoline out. So I go in. Uh uh, but I don't reach it." He twisted his bony hands together.

There was really no use asking: "What caused the fire, grandpa?"

"Carelessness! Ah, that fool night man is sitting in the office like God in heaven. 'Come on, Jose,' I say 'grab a bucket.' But he walks off and somebody else calls the firemen. Next thing I know I stumble over a hand cart and spill the water and I'm not six feet from the tank of gasoline. I hear the foreman yell and the whole warehouse blows up."

"Did you see anything, grandpa, that could have caused the fire to start?"

"Sim, senhorita, sim. That fool night man's carelessness."

"I mean, like electric wiring that went bad, or dynamite?"

"Uh? Dynamite? Where? The senhorita sounds like the insurance man who came to see me at the hospital." He chuckled. "No, nothing like that. 'Fire happens any time. You have to keep watching, you can't sit at a desk like God in heaven!'"

How could she ask if he had noticed whether the rubber was all there without sounding like the insurance man again?

"And the smoke so thick," he added. "I can't see a bala or a biscuit on the piece. Uh uh..."

An oily chill ran up Sara's spine. Above Ubo's coughing she heard a honking and a cutout and screeching brakes. She looked behind her. There was the back door Ubo had used that other day.

"Goodbye, grandpa," she said hurriedly. "I hear Guaro. Let's keep my visit secret from him."

She ran out the rear door and through the back yards to the bus stop like a thief. The thought of being found here again by Ubo had suddenly terrified her.

How could she ask if he had noticed whether the rubber was all there without sounding like the insurance man again?

"And the smoke so thick," he added. "I can't see a bala or a biscuit on the piece. Uh uh..."

Scrubbing keeps natural gas
the cleanest fuel
in town...

Suspended in natural gas, as it comes from the wellhead, are a variety of hydrocarbon liquids, water and fine particles released from the deep-down formations of the earth. These are removed, for the most part, when the gas passes through processing plants before being delivered into our pipelines.

But, some minute particles linger on. And as the gas moves through the pipeline, it can pick up added foreign solids and liquid condensate in the pipe.

So, to filter out these elements, we "scrub" the gas at compressor stations along the line to assure that it will be clean on delivery. That means frequent "scrubbings" in tank-like devices that are called — aptly enough — "scrubbers."

There are three types of scrubbers. The "dry" scrubber (at top) is a 40-inch diameter tank containing a hundred or more small tubes through which the gas is whirled. As the gas goes through, foreign particles and liquids, being heavier, separate and drop out.

The horizontal scrubber (just above) uses oil-coated metal surfaces to trap foreign matter — plus a section that works on the dry scrubber principle.

The third is a three-phase oil-bath separator, in which the gas is first bubbled through an oil bath, then spun dry in a centrifugal separator, and, finally, passed through a mist extractor.

Scrubbed and rescrubbed many times, the gas we deliver to our customers—utility companies in a dozen or more states—can truly be said to be the "cleanest gas in town."

This is one in a series of monthly reports on the diversified activities of Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation.

Ford to Speed Production of Automobiles

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. said today it is speeding up production of automobiles this week and hopes for even more improvement next week.

Ford worked only three days in most of its plants last week in an effort to stretch steel supplies. It said work schedules for this week—setting up at least four-day weeks at all plants—were drawn before weekend developments sent striking steelworkers back to their jobs.

Ford makes about 50 per cent of its own steel. A Ford spokesman said fresh supplies expected in about four weeks should prevent an general shutdown.

The picture was still gloomy, however, for General Motors and Chrysler. Both expect more layoffs before new steel supplies arrive.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Western diplomats appear reconciled to a United States decision to cut foreign military and economic spending as part of a drive to close the overseas dollar gap.

They are unhappy about the prospect. But they fear there is little or nothing they can do except to hope the cuts will not be drastic. Some foreign finance experts believe the Eisenhower administration is overly alarmed about the problem.

At present, the United States is spending four billion dollars more in other countries each year than it earns from trade and investments.

This record deficit rate has sent administration authorities on an intensive back-stage hunt for ways to cut spending and to boost American exports without sacrificing America's free world leadership.

No final decision have been made but Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson is reportedly pushing a drive to cut foreign aid spending as well as some of the $1.5 billion dollars which goes to maintain American troops and bases overseas.

Allied diplomats have been watching this trend apprehensively. They fear this budget pruning mood may tempt Congress to take even further and sealed down requests. Another fear is that Congress may demand some trade protectionist measures to bar certain foreign goods.

President Eisenhower and other administration leaders, although they may cut such spending, show no signs of reversing their stand that trade restrictions must be kept at a minimum to expand world trade.

Many Western countries are reported about ready to ease restrictions on imports of the U.S. goods. Such action, if widespread, could ease this country's trade deficit.

Foreign diplomats who examine the deficits problem repeatedly say they consider the four-billion-dollar deficit a temporary situation. Expanding American trade, they believe, will cut this substantially in the next few years.

Rape Charge Filed at Siloam Springs

By JOHN SCALI

SILCAM SPRINGS, Ark. (UPI) — Rape charges were filed yesterday against Raymond James, 21, who is accused of assaulting a 19-year-old woman near here last Saturday.

Deputy Prosecutor Charles Cocio said James probably would be arraigned Nov. 10. James is held without bond.

The woman and her husband said she was raped by a man who picked them up as they were hitchhiking from Siloam Springs to Fayetteville. She said the attacker forced her husband out of the car.

The Supreme Court issued only a relatively small list of orders in its session today—its regular meeting day for handing down decisions. During most of last week, the court had been engaged in study of the steel strike injunction case. Its decision in that case was announced on Saturday.

IT HAS SIX BODY STYLES: New convertible, new 4-door and 2-door station wagon, hardtop, 4-door and 2-door sedan! Seven sophisticated colors. Handsome interiors appointed in distinctive pleated vinyl or cloths. Nobody else has them. Why settle for less?

IT HAS A POWERFUL, THRIFTY V-8 OR SUPER ECONOMICAL "6": The Lark V-8 topped all other eights in last year's Mobilgas Economy Run. Have your cake and eat it, too. The V-8 Lark (costs just a little more than the "6") offers all the advantages of new dimension cars plus potent performance matched to economy.

The "six" offers spirited performance with greater fuel economy. Why be limited? Choose with The Lark! (Important! The Lark couples safety with power...V-8 brakes are biggest in field.)

IT HAS CHOICE OF THREE TERRIFIC TRANSMISSIONS: Automatic, three-speed stick shift, three-speed stick with overdrive. Lark automatic transmission has a full range of speeds. Lark three-speed synchromesh is smooth, and, with overdrive, the engine loads at cruising speed, cuts your gas bills even more. Which one suits you best? The Lark offers this choice—plus a selection of 7 axle ratios—the others do not!

IT HAS MANY UNUSUAL FEATURES: Reclining seats that make into beds, front seat headrests, hillholder, Twin Traction (for driving through snow, sand, ice or mud), air conditioning, 4-barrel carburetor and dual exhausts...many, many more. None of the others have this wide variety of options from which to choose.

IT HAS PROVEN PERFORMANCE WITHOUT RECOGNITION TO EXPERIMENTAL RUNS: 130,000 Lark owners have driven a total of over 750 million miles under every conceivable road and weather condition. Result is: no "bugs" to iron out, no "hidden" mechanical faults...no problems for new owners. Dealers and service men everywhere know The Lark. Studebaker-Packard corporate records clearly show that Lark service and maintenance costs are one third of the automobile industry average. How can you go wrong on that?
